A brief introduction to Came Down Golf Club

Came Down Golf Club was founded in 1896, starting life as a 9 hole course under the name of Dorchester Golf Club. The Club in its present form dates from 1927, the same year as the inaugural match of the biennial Ryder Cup, with which it is intimately linked.

The Whitcombe brothers, three men who have become golfing legends, honed their skills at Came Down when the eldest brother, Ernest, was appointed Club Professional in 1910 at the age of 19. He was joined by his mother, who became Club Stewardess, and his two brothers, both of whom also developed a formidable talent for the game.

During this time Samuel Ryder holidayed with his family in Weymouth each year, and played golf each day at Came Down where he came to know the Whitcombe brothers. This friendship was to change the future of golf. Impressed by their skill he learnt that in order to compete in major tournaments they needed sponsors, and this inspired a Challenge Match, later officially known as the Ryder Cup, between the professionals of Britain and America. He commissioned a gold cup as the prize. Members have twice seen the famous Cup at Came Down, most notably in 1996 as part of the centenary celebrations, it was brought to the Club by Bernard Gallagher, Ryder Cup Captain for our 1995 victory.

The Members' lounge can comfortably seat 80 to 100 Members. The lounge has magnificent views across the golf course towards Dorchester and the view to the south is further enhanced by the sight of one of the course's many ancient burial mounds. It is reputed that at one of these there can sometimes be heard the faint sound of Roman soldiers, singing as they march!
