How Last Member Standing works

Each week you must pick a team to win. If your team wins, you go through to the next round. If your team draws or loses you are out. Premier League teams only, weekend fixtures only - Friday to Monday (inclusive). Cup games and midweek fixtures are excluded. You cannot pick a team more than once. If you forget to pick a team or forget to send your prediction, you will be allocated the lowest placed team in the Premier League that you are yet to pick. If your chosen game is postponed, you will automatically go through to the next round. The member with the longest streak of predicting winning teams will win the pot. If two players remain, they can choose to split the pot or continue. If all remaining players are eliminated at the same time there is no winner. In this instance there will be a rollover and all original players will be invited to buy back in for an additional £10. All Premier League teams will be available for selection again.

The committee's decision is final. Reminders will not be sent. The winner will receive 70% of the entry fees and the 100Club will invest the remaining 30% into projects around the club. Good Luck and best wishes to everyone from the 100Club team.
